WAKATOBI

Wakatobi, a jewel in southeast Sulawesi, stands for four main islands: Wangi-Wangi, Kaledupa, Tomia and Binongko. The area has been designated as one of UNESCO's World Heritage Sites for its outstanding underwater natural beauty. Located in the heart of the world's Coral Triangle, Wakatobi boasts unparalleled marine biodiversity, making it a haven for divers and marine lovers from all corners of the globe. This beauty is not only limited to the underwater, but also the charm of the islands with their rich local culture.

Wakatobi's waters are home to more than 750 coral species and thousands of fish species, making it one of the most diverse marine ecosystems on the planet. The clarity of the water allows for excellent visibility to explore its spectacular underwater gardens. In addition, the local Bajo people, known as "sea nomads," provide a unique cultural touch, with houses on stilts over the water and traditions closely linked to marine life. This uniqueness makes Wakatobi more than just a marine tourism destination, but an immersive cultural experience.

Tourism development in Wakatobi focuses on sustainability, ensuring that its natural wealth is preserved for future generations. Conservation efforts are undertaken to protect vulnerable marine ecosystems, while local communities are empowered to participate in the development of sustainable tourism.

NATIONAL PARK

Wakatobi National Park is the heart of Indonesia's underwater wonders, a site globally recognized for its incredible marine biodiversity. As part of the world's Coral Triangle, the national park is home to a variety of magnificent coral species and fascinating marine life. Divers and snorkeling enthusiasts will find themselves in the midst of a vibrant aquatic scene, with colorful coral reefs and tropical fish swimming freely in the clear waters.

The area is not only ecologically important, but also offers an immersive experience for visitors to understand the importance of marine conservation. Every corner of Wakatobi National Park presents incomparable beauty, from unique coral formations to direct interaction with a variety of sea creatures. It is a place where the beauty of nature truly shines through, inviting us to appreciate and preserve the underwater treasures.

With an area of 1.39 million hectares, Wakatobi National Park provides a diverse range of dive sites suitable for all levels, from beginners to professional divers. Visitors can enjoy the thrill of diving among healthy coral reefs, exploring underwater caves, or simply enjoying the beauty from the surface while snorkeling. The experience here is the perfect blend of adventure and appreciation of natural beauty.

5 UNIQUE AND INTERESTING FACTS ABOUT WAKATOBI NATIONAL PARK

1. World Coral Reef Paradise

Wakatobi National Park in Southeast Sulawesi is an underwater paradise with more than 750 species of coral reefs, making it one of the most biodiverse marine areas in the world, surpassing even the Great Barrier Reef.

2. Part of the World Coral Triangle

Located in the World Coral Triangle region, Wakatobi is renowned as a world-class diving destination with more than 40 dive spots such as Roma and Blade.

3. Community-based Ecotourism and Conservation

In addition, the area is a successful example of community-based conservation, where local people, including the Bajo tribe, are actively involved in marine conservation and ecotourism development.

4. World-Class Dive Spots

With more than 40 world-class dive spots such as Roma, Cornucopia, and Blade, Wakatobi is known as a favorite destination for international professional divers due to its high visibility and exceptional marine biodiversity.

5. Designated a UNESCO World Biosphere Reserve

In 2012, Wakatobi was recognized by UNESCO as a World Biosphere Reserve due to its rich ecosystems and sustainable conservation model that is harmonious with the lives of coastal communities.

Tomia Island

(ALI REEF, HOUSE REEF, MAYA BAY)

Tomia Island in Wakatobi is a diver's dream, offering a stunning array of world-class dive sites. The island is the gateway to incredible underwater beauty, with names like Ali Reef, House Reef, Roma Reef and Maya Bay being the main attractions. Each dive site in Tomia has unique characteristics and amazing biodiversity, making it an underwater explorer's dream.

Ali Reef, for example, is known for its healthy hard and soft coral formations and abundant fish life, while House Reef offers easy access and beautiful scenery right in front of the resort. Roma Reef is a more adventurous site with currents that allow sightings of large marine life, and Maya Bay amazes with small caves and crevices teeming with life. These four sites represent Tomia's endless underwater treasures.

Tomia Island itself offers not only underwater beauty, but also a strong sense of local culture. After diving, visitors can explore traditional villages, interact with locals or enjoy stunning sunset views from the island's hills. The combination of underwater adventure and cultural experience makes Tomia Island an unforgettable destination in Wakatobi.

- Offers an array of world-class dive sites
- The gateway to incredible underwater beauty
- Each site has unique characteristics and amazing biodiversity.

Tomia Island, part of the Wakatobi archipelago in Southeast Sulawesi, offers beaches such as Huntete Beach and Hongaha Beach with fine white sand and clear sea water. At Huntete Beach, visitors can enjoy the sunrise and have the opportunity to watch whales in the waters off the morning. Hongaha Beach, hidden away in Kulati Village, offers a unique experience: exotic white sand and ancient Japanese shipwrecks on the seabed, perfect for snorkeling and exploring history.

Tomia Island's underwater is part of the world's coral triangle, with 1.2km of healthy coral reefs—a paradise for divers and snorkelers. Inland, Tomia's signature savannahs and hills provide spectacular panoramas: golden hour at Khayangan Hill is a favorite moment to capture the silhouette of the island against a backdrop of blue waves.

Wangi-Wangi Island

(LIYA FORT)

Wangi-Wangi Island is the main island in the Wakatobi group and serves as the entry point for most tourists. Although known as the administrative and economic center, the island also holds interesting cultural and historical charms, one of which is the Liya Fort. The fort is a historical relic that offers a glimpse into the past and traditional architecture of the Wakatobi people.

Fort Liya is not just an old building; it is a symbol of resilience and local wisdom. Located on a hill, the fort used to serve as a defense system and community settlement. Visitors can explore the remains of the fort, feel the atmosphere of history, and enjoy the beautiful view from a height. The traditional architecture of the fort is also interesting to learn about, reflecting the skills and culture of the local people.

Apart from Fort Liya, Wangi-Wangi Island also offers a range of tourist facilities, including accommodation, restaurants and souvenir shops. The island is a good starting point for exploring the rest of Wakatobi's beauty, both underwater and cultural. With its blend of easy access, history and culture, Wangi-Wangi Island is an essential part of the Wakatobi vacation experience.

Wangi-Wangi Island is the gateway to Wakatobi National Park and the administrative center of Wakatobi Regency. The island has stunning natural beauty, with white sandy beaches, clear sea water, and amazing snorkeling and diving spots. Popular spots include Waha and Onemohute, which are known for their colorful coral reefs.

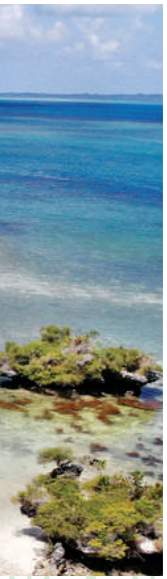

Aside from its natural beauty, Wangi-Wangi also has a rich and interesting culture. The island is inhabited by the Bajo and Cia-Cia tribes who maintain ancestral customs and traditions. Visitors can witness typical stilt houses as well as various traditional ceremonies.

The island is also famous for its natural springs such as Kontamale Cave, a natural tourist spot that offers clear water coming out of a limestone cave. Many residents use it as a bathing and washing place.

With a blend of underwater nature, local culture and geographical uniqueness, Wangi-Wangi Island offers visitors an authentic and unforgettable travel experience.

Binongko ISLAND

Ironworker Island

Binongko Island is one of the most remote islands in the Wakatobi group, known as the “Island of the Ironmongers” for its legendary ironwork tradition. The island offers a more authentic and secluded experience, away from the tourist crowds. Its natural beauty is still very much unspoiled, with tranquil coastlines and rich underwater life, making it a haven for those seeking tranquility.

Binongko Island’s blacksmithing tradition has been passed down for generations, producing a variety of traditional tools and weapons of high quality. Visitors have the opportunity to witness the process of making these iron-works firsthand, interact with the artisans, and learn the history behind their craft. This experience provides a deep insight into the incredible wealth of local culture and skills.

In addition to ironwork, Binongko Island also offers undiscovered marine tourism potential, with diving spots that promise pristine underwater beauty. The island is an ideal choice for travelers who want to explore the more remote side of Wakatobi, experience authentic local life, and enjoy unspoiled natural beauty.

Kaledupa Island

(LA DONDA FORT, OLD TOMB, OLLO FORT)

Kaledupa Island is one of the islands rich in cultural and historical heritage in Wakatobi, offering more than just underwater beauty. The island is home to several important historical sites such as La Donda Fort, the Old Tomb, and Ollo Fort, all of which reflect the rich past and local wisdom of the Kaledupa people.

La Donda Fort and Ollo Fort are traditional architectural relics that once served as defensive fortifications and settlement centers. Visiting these forts provides an insight into the defense strategies of the ancient people and their social structure. Meanwhile, the Old Tomb adds a spiritual and historical dimension, offering insight into local beliefs and customs.

In addition to its historical value, Kaledupa Island also enchants with its serene natural beauty and welcoming culture. Visitors can explore traditional villages, interact with warm locals and enjoy the peaceful atmosphere. The combination of history, culture and beautiful nature makes Kaledupa Island an exciting and memorable destination in Wakatobi.

INTERESTING FACTS KALEDUPA ISLAND

Kaledupa Island, one of the four main islands in Wakatobi, is a unique cultural and natural treasure. Its coral reefs are among the most beautiful in the world, home to rare species such as pygmy seahorses and green turtles.

The local people, especially the Bajo tribe, live in harmony with the sea and have maintained maritime traditions since time immemorial. Kaledupa is also famous for its distinctive weaving tradition in Pajam Village, as well as the traditional Lariangi dance, which is performed during important ceremonies.

On the mainland, there is the Ollo Fort and an ancient mosque as historical relics. The combination of strong culture and natural charm makes Kaledupa an island rich in ecological and cultural values.

IKAN BAKAR COLO-COLO

Ikan Bakar Colo-Colo is a must-try Wakatobi specialty, featuring fresh fish grilled to perfection. The dish highlights the natural flavors of the fish that blend harmoniously with the spicy, fresh, and aromatic sambal colo-colo. Sambal colo-colo is made from a blend of local spices such as cayenne pepper, shallots, tomatoes and lime juice, creating an appetizing taste sensation.

The fish is grilled over hot coals, resulting in a distinctive smoky aroma and a texture that is tender on the inside but crispy on the outside. This dish is often served with steamed rice and fresh vegetables, making it a complete meal to enjoy after a day at the beach or diving.

IKAN PARENDE

Ikan Parende is a Wakatobi fish soup dish that is famous for its fresh and rich soup. The dish uses freshly selected fish cooked with traditional spices such as turmeric, ginger, galangal, lemongrass, and chili, creating a complex and warming flavor. The clear yet flavorful Parende gravy is the main attraction of this dish.

The cooking process of Parende takes ample time to ensure that the spices are fully absorbed into the fish meat, resulting in a savory taste and pleasant aroma. The dish is often eaten with steamed rice, perfect for warming up after a day at sea. Ikan Parende is the perfect representation of delicious and authentic Wakatobi home cooking.

KASUAMI

Kasuami is a Wakatobi staple made from grated cassava, making it a unique and carbohydrate-rich alternative to rice. It has a chewy texture and a rather bland taste, making it perfect for pairing with rich seafood dishes, such as grilled fish or parende fish. Kasuami is an integral part of the daily diet of the local people.

The process of making Kasuami involves complex processing of cassava, from grating it, squeezing out the water, to steaming it in special molds until it is cooked. The conical or round shape also characterizes Kasuami. For tourists who want to try an authentic local culinary experience, Kasuami is an interesting choice to taste and experience the traditional flavors of Wakatobi.

HELOA SIRA

Heloa Sira is a traditional Wakatobi dish originating from Kaledupa Island. This dish is made from a mixture of sago, grated coconut, and sea fish flavored with special spices. All ingredients are mixed and wrapped using leaves, then steamed or grilled until cooked. The traditional cooking process makes the aroma and taste very distinctive and appetizing.

Heloa Sira is usually served in traditional events, harvest celebrations, or thanksgiving ceremonies as a symbol of gratitude to God and a form of community togetherness. The savory flavors of coconut and fish blend with the chewy texture of sago, creating a unique and authentic culinary sensation. This food reflects the rich culture and local wisdom of the Wakatobi people.

LULUTA

Luluta is a unique traditional Wakatobi dish, made from rice cooked in bamboo. This unique cooking process gives the rice a special aroma and flavor, with the fragrant touch of bamboo permeating the dish. This dish is often served on special occasions or traditional ceremonies, demonstrating the high cultural value of the Wakatobi people.

Seasoned rice is stuffed into bamboo strips, then grilled or steamed until cooked. The result is fluffy rice with a very distinctive aroma and soft texture. Luluta is often eaten with side dishes such as fish or meat, creating a delicious combination of flavors. Tasting Luluta is the perfect way to experience Wakatobi's rich cuisine and culture first-hand.

grilled chicken), and Coto Makassar (Makassar beef soup), all prepared from fresh local ingredients and served in large portions. Plain iced tea is often provided for free to accompany the dishes, adding to the dining comfort.

The food prices are very affordable, making it perfect for both tourists and locals who want to enjoy authentic cuisine without breaking the bank. It is open every day from morning to afternoon/evening—around 8:00 AM to 6:00 PM. With authentic flavors, friendly prices, and a spicy chili sauce that whets the appetite, D'Bantea is an ideal place to hunt for typical Sulawesi Ronggeng food after diving or snorkeling.

WAKATOBI'S SIGNATURE WOVEN FABRIC

Sasak Woven Fabric or Songket is one of the most iconic souvenirs from Lombok, representing the rich culture and traditional handicrafts of the Sasak tribe. Each motif and color in the woven fabric has its own philosophical meaning and story, making it not only beautiful but also full of value. The manual and time-consuming manufacturing process shows the dedication of the weavers.

These woven fabrics can be used as clothing, home décor, or personal collections, showcasing the elegance of Lombok culture. Buying Sasak woven fabric means supporting the preservation of tradition and empowering local artisans. It is an authentic and meaningful souvenir from Lombok.

CASHEW NUTS

Cashew Nuts from Wakatobi is one of the most popular souvenirs due to its premium quality and delicious taste. The Wakatobi region, especially Binongko, is known for producing high-quality cashew nuts, with a crunchy texture and naturally sweet flavor. These cashews are processed in various ways, from roasting, frying, to seasoning, making them the perfect snack to enjoy anytime.

Wakatobi cashew nuts are not only delicious, but also rich in nutrients, making them a healthy and beneficial souvenir choice. The handy packaging also makes it easy for travelers to take them home as souvenirs. Whether you're a fan of healthy snacks or looking for a savory treat, Wakatobi cashew nuts are a choice that won't disappoint.

GULE-GULE

Gule-Gule is a traditional sweet snack from Wakatobi made from glutinous rice and brown sugar, often in the shape of small or flat balls. Its chewy texture and sweet, creamy taste make Gule-Gule a favorite snack among locals and tourists alike. This snack reflects the simplicity of the ingredients while producing authentic flavors.

The traditional process of making Gule-Gule adds to the uniqueness of this snack. Gule-Gule is often served as a dessert or afternoon tea companion. For tourists looking for souvenirs in the form of sweet and distinctive traditional snacks, Gule-Gule is the perfect choice to experience the authentic taste of Wakatobi.

KUE BAGEA

Kue Bagea is a traditional pastry popular in Wakatobi and some areas in Eastern Indonesia, made from sago. It has a unique texture, tending to be hard on the outside but melting in the mouth when chewed, with a mild sweetness and a distinctive sago aroma. Kue Bagea is a great snack to enjoy with coffee or tea, often becoming the region's signature souvenir.

Kue Bagea is not only delicious, but also long-lasting, making it a handy souvenir to bring back home. The cakes are often served in round or oval shapes, and many of them are still made using traditional methods. Its incredible marine biodiversity, with more than 750 species of coral and thousands of species of fish, attracts divers from all over the world. The clear waters offer fantastic visibility, allowing divers to be fully immersed in the beauty of the magnificent underwater park.

Numerous dive sites are scattered throughout the Wakatobi island chain, offering experiences that range from dramatic coral walls to shallow, colorful coral gardens. Each dive promises stunning sightings of marine life, such as turtles, sharks, manta rays and a variety of endemic fish. Scuba diving in Wakatobi is not just a sport, but a journey of exploration into one of the richest marine ecosystems on Earth.

SNORKELING

Snorkeling in Wakatobi offers an easy and fun way to enjoy its spectacular underwater beauty, even for those without diving certification. The shallow waters around Wakatobi's islands are filled with healthy, colorful coral reefs and free-swimming tropical fish. The clarity of the water allows for great visibility, so everyone can witness the wonders of the underwater world without having to dive too deep.

Many snorkeling spots are easily accessible from the shore or by short-distance boat, making it an ideal activity for families or beginners. Visitors can see various coral formations, encounter swimming sea turtles, or simply float on the surface while taking in the stunning scenery. Snorkeling in Wakatobi is the perfect way to experience the charm of the sea without the need for complicated equipment.

KAYAKING AND STAND-UP PADDLEBOARDING (SUP)

Kayaking and Stand-Up Paddleboarding (SUP) in Wakatobi offer a serene and immersive way to explore the beauty of the shallow waters and coastline. With a kayak or SUP board, visitors can paddle through tranquil lagoons, around small islands, or even through unspoiled mangrove forests. This activity allows for closer interaction with nature, while enjoying mesmerizing views from the water's surface.

It's suitable for all ages and skill levels, giving you the freedom to set the pace of your exploration. Kayaking and SUP are also an eco-friendly way to experience Wakatobi, producing no noise pollution or emissions. With calm waters and captivating scenery, kayaking and SUP are a great choice to relax and enjoy the beauty of Wakatobi from a different perspective.

ISLAND HOPPING TOURS

Island Hopping Tours in Wakatobi are a great way to explore the beauty of this stunning cluster of islands. These tours usually involve a boat trip to several islands and the best diving or snorkeling sites, such as Hoga, Tomia or Binongko Islands. Each island offers its own charm, from white sandy beaches, traditional villages, to spectacular dive spots.

Through this tour, tourists can experience the diversity of Wakatobi, both in terms of nature and culture. They can snorkel in crystal clear waters, relax on secluded beaches, or interact with local people. Island Hopping Tours also often include lunch on remote islands, adding to the authentic and unforgettable experience. This is an efficient way to maximize a visit to Wakatobi and see as much of the wonders it has to offer as possible.

DOLPHIN AND WHALE WATCHING

Dolphin and Whale Watching in the waters of Wakatobi offers a rare opportunity to witness the wonders of marine mammals in their natural habitat. The nutrient-rich waters around Wakatobi attract a variety of dolphin species and even some whales, making this a thrilling experience. Early morning, when the waters are still calm, is the best time to embark on this adventure and watch them in action.

Local tour operators usually provide specialized boats for this activity, with guides who are experienced in tracking dolphins and whales. The experience of seeing dolphins jumping and playing in the waves, or even a rare whale sighting, will be an unforgettable moment for every visitor. This activity also emphasizes the importance of preserving the marine ecosystem to protect the population of these marine mammals.
